CATARRH

COLD IN HEAD

REGRET.

Time was when twilight wrapped the earth
Within its dim, enchanted hazes.
She always met me at the gate
Amid the sleepy snow white daisies.
The vesper robins sang of love;
The moon smiled softly from above.

Her little hand reposed in mine;
Her head against my shoulder nestled;
Her voice was gentle as the dews
That on the vine leaves sweetly rustled.
She said whatever might betide
Her only joy was by my side.

The stars looked curious when we kissed.
Full fiercely piped the jealous crickets.
The fireflies round her golden head
Flew from the misty meadow thickets.
She seemed an angel all in white,
With airy little frills bedight.

But now, alas, those happy days
Have vanished like a dream of heaven.
She rides a wheel and never more
I find her waiting me at even.
In fact, we scarcely ever meet.
We only race from street to street.

In vain I plead, "Pray stay awhile
And to my tender accents listen!"
"But you must catch me first!" she cries,
With cheeks aglow and eyes a-glisten,
And off she flies o'er hill and plain,
While I pursue with might and main.

The moon has no more charms for me.
I hail no more the restful shadows.
There is no balm in the sweet air
That blows up from the twilight meadows.
I scarce can tell her from a score
Of cyclers when she rides before.

O youth, too trusting and too fond,
Who wears a heart with romance laden,
Beware, I pray you, ere too late,
The glances of a cycling maiden,
For love himself away will steal,
Changing his light wings for a wheel!
—Susan Hartley in Boston Courier.

RESTED THE CASE.

The October sun struggled in dusty beams through the grimy panes, on which the flies buzzed noisily, and the dust dancing light fell over the crowded courtroom. In the witness chair sat a long, lank man, whose trousers wrinkled over his boot tops. His face was brown and lean, his sinewy hands clasped and unclasped nervously, and his keen, gray eyes rested fixedly on the face of the man who stood before him. The man in the chair was Vint Joskins, on trial for his life; the man on the floor before him was his attorney. The witnesses for the defense had all been examined, and now the prisoner had been brought in to tell his story. The preliminary questions were done with, and the attorney spoke to his client. "Tell the story in your own way," he said.

The prisoner twisted his lean hands together and looked from the lawyer to the judge. "Go on," said the judge, not unkindly.

"I'll tell hit as near right as I kin," the prisoner began. "This man Deering"—

"The murdered man," interrupted the state's attorney. The counsel for the defendant objected to the interruption, and the court told the attorney for the state to let the prisoner proceed.

"This man Deering," again commenced the prisoner, "he come down th'o the valley when they built that there railroad two year ago. He was one of them men that lays out the way, an while he was in our part of the county he stopped at Sam Tice's. I seen him there frequent. I was sorter keepin company with Sam's girl then." The speaker stopped and looked toward one of the dusty windows.

"Go on," said his counsel encouragingly. "Can't you remember?"

"Hit ain't no trouble ter remember," the prisoner said slowly; "hit's the trouble o' fergittin. Seems like I kin remember ever' leetle thing. Well, Deering, he stopped at Tice's, an he was mighty soft spoken to 'em all, 'specially ter Lizzie, but nobody didn't think nothin o' that. When bad weather come in the fall, the men on the road quit work an went away, Deering with 'em. I was sorter glad whenst he went, fer I thought I o'd see more o' Lizzie. I didn't, though, fer in less'n a week after Deering went Lizzie was gone, too, an we didn't none of us hear nothin of her till Nate Rogers brung word that he seen her in the city. Nate 'lowed that she were dressed fit ter kill an were smilin an happy, an he heerd her called Mrs. Deering. Then Sam he got a letter from her, an after that he an her mother got letters reg'lar most all winter.

"One night in April I was over to Tice's, an we was settin there talking whenst the door open all of a sudden, an Lizzie walked in. It was a-rainin out, an she was all wet, an her hair was kinder loose an her dress was muddy.

"'W'y, Lizzie, child, where'd you come from an where's your husband?' says old Mis' Tice, an went like ter kiss her, but Lizzie sort o' sunk back in the chair she had dropped inter an begun ter cry, not loud, but jest a sort o' dry sobbin, like she hadn't no tears left. An then hit all come out, how she hadn't never been married, on'y thought she was, till Deering got full one night an told her. Then she come home.

"'An, mother,' she says, 'mother, I—I—I'm goin—goin'— An then she clean broke down, an we seen how hit was. Old Mis' Tice air an awful good woman, powerful on churchgoin an religion an mighty up an down in her idees, an she flared up ter onst. 'Ye good fer nothin hussy,' says she, 'air that how it is? Ye kin jest go back ter the city an yer fine man. Ye air no child of mine—you, that we all wasn't good enough for! An this air what ye've come ter, ch—bringin shame on ter the rest of us?' An with that she sits down straight an stiff on the other side o' the room an wouldn't say another word, not even whenst Lizzie got up an started ter go, sayin nothin but jest, 'Oh, mother!' kinder pitiful like. Old Tice he didn't dare say anythin contrary ter his wife, but I wasn't tied no sech way. I jest slipped out'n the house after Lizzie, an I got her ter go over ter my place, whar mam took keer of her.

"I reckon thar hain't no use tellin what went on after that a bit. Anyway, I got Lizzie ter marry me, an sometimes she begun ter act real cheerful like. She were always mighty gentle an quiet an was always doin somethin for me, like she were tryin ter say that she thought a heap o' my standin up fer her. This were 'long 'bout harvest time, an I hadn't been feelin so good as then sence Lizzie run away. The women folks didn't neighbor much with her, but mam, she says the women air a pack o' fools, an set a heap o' store by Lizzie.

"One evenin I struck up with Nate Rogers on the road, an he says, says he: 'Say, did ye see that Deering feller terday? He were round by your house talkin ter Lizzie,' he says, 'an I seen her cryin.' 'Look here, Nate,' I says, 'ye mean well, I reckon, but ye remember that ye air talkin 'bout my wife now.' 'Oh, well,' says Nate, 'I didn't mean no harm, on'y I thought ye orter know what was goin on,' an with that he took a short cut 'cross the fields, an I kep' on the road.

"It were just sundown, an I were walkin 'long the road, where hit rounds the hill 'long above the river. I were goin slow, thinkin over what Nate said, an not lookin fer anybody, when all o' a sudden I run against a man. Hit were Deering himself. He jumped a little, but says, cool as anything, 'Good evenin, Joskins,' an made like he were goin ter pass on. I reached out my hand an stopped him.

"'Ye've come down here ter make more trouble where ye've made too much a're'dy,' says I. 'Ye've come down here ter see Lizzie, my wife,' I says, 'but if ye make any more trouble fer her or keep hangin round tryin ter see her, by God, I'll kill ye!'

"'It takes a better man than ye ter do that,' says he, smilin ugly. 'I was a better man in love than ye, an I reckon I am in some other things. Ye fool,' he says, 'if I wanted Lizzie, do ye think she'd stay with sech a country lout as ye? She'd leave ye termorrer if I said the word.'

"'Ye air a liar,' I says, an he struck at me with a cane he carried—one o' them loaded ones. I ketched it on my left arm, an then I gripped him. He was strong as me pretty near, but he wasn't fightin for what I was, an he went down under me heavy. My left arm were under when we went down, an I felt it sort o' give way, but I got a grip on his throat with my right hand, an I choked the life most out'n him. We rolled crost the road, an I was lookin for both of us ter go over the side. We knowed hit were him or me, an he were fightin hard for his life, but I were fightin harder for Lizzie, an I had the best of it. He done his best ter fight my hand off'n his throat, but hit weren't no use. I had hit gripped. He hit me in the face an tried ter get his hands on my neck, but my arm was the longest. I pushed his head back an back, with him fightin a little weaker all the time an his face gettin dark. Then I felt us both a-slippin, an I managed ter jerk loose an fell back on the road, an he went over the edge. He made one grab, but he on'y ketched the loose rocks. Then there come a splash an a rattle o' fallin stones, an I knowed he were on the rocks in the river a hundred foot below.

"I laid there awhile, an then I struggled up an went home. The doctor, yander, kin tell ye the rest. He fixed my arm up that night an 'tended Lizzie next day when the leetle baby come, an her an the baby both died"—

The prisoner's hands worked on the arms of the chair. There was a hush in the courtroom, and some one in the crowd sighed heavily. The attorney for the defense arose. "May it please the court," he said, "the defense rests its case."—Henry Holcomb Bennett in Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Early Babylonian Surveyors.

In the Zeitschrift Fur Vermessungswesen Professor Hammer directs attention to a Babylonian plan depicted on a clay tablet found in the excavations at Tello and now preserved in the Constantinople museum. The plan was made about 3,000 years before the Christian era and represents an estate belonging to King Dungi. It is of importance not only as a contribution to the early history of surveying, but also as a confirmation of the views on Babylonian measures of length and of area propounded by Reisner at a meeting of the Berlin Academy of Sciences on April 9, 1896.

A copy of the plan has been examined by Eisenlohr, the eminent authority on Egyptian archæology, and he claims to be able to read from the cuneiform inscription the names of the two surveyors engaged. On one side of the tablet there is a dimensioned sketch of the plan of the estate not drawn to scale. The estate is divided by the survey lines into rectangles, right angled triangles and trapeziums. In each case the area is stated, two results obtained by different methods being given. Eisenlohr has plotted the survey, and his calculations of the area agree with the results given on the tablet. On the other side of the tablet the areas of the various portions are added together, two sets of figures being used, and the arithmetical mean taken as the correct area.

The unit adopted, the "gan," is thought to be equal to 4,199 square meters. The absolute measures are, however, of slight importance. More important is the fact that land surveying was carried on 4,000 years B. C., apparently in an accurate manner, and certainly with check measurements.—Nature.

Nansen on Peary.

Dr. Nansen, on his recent return to London, said to a newspaper reporter: "Peary is taking a good route to the pole. He is in the foremost rank of arctic explorers, and I believe he will be successful. I do not think there is any doubt of the possibility of reaching the pole in the way he is going to work, and it will be comparatively easy for a man of his caliber. The story that I intend to accompany him is not true, that report being, no doubt, based on the statement that Peary was going in the ship that brought me home."

American Drug Shops.

During the seventeenth century the druggist came to America and closely followed English precedents, modifying them, however, by the practice of the Indians with whom he came in contact. Quack apothecaries began to spring up in the new land, and in 1636 the colony of Virginia passed a law which among other things regulated the prices and fees of the druggist. At this time it was fashionable for the druggists to practice surgery in addition to pharmacy, and the Virginia colony contained a large number of people who were proficient in both professions. In Massachusetts the business was largely in the hands of Indians, schoolmasters, old women and teachers. The Salem witchcraft delusion retarded the spread of the druggist for some time in the Bay State, for the popular impression fastened on the apothecaries a suspicion that they sold the potions that were supposed to produce the spells. Among those who suffered persecution at this time mixers of medicine appear to have been prominent.

The drug shop had not yet become a distinct institution. It was usually a branch of the grocery or spice business. In 1647 one Giles Forman of Boston had, however, firmly established himself as devoting special attention to pharmacy. In 1646 the first distinctive drug store in America was opened in Boston by William Davies. No doubt more reliance was placed on drugs then than now, when people are beginning to recognize the large part that fresh air, dietetics and other hygienic measures play in the successful treatment of disease.—Lippincott's Magazine.

Not His Province.

The New England ministers of early days were expected to preserve an aspect grave to the verge of solemnity on all occasions, not only on Sundays, but week days as well. If they possessed a sense of humor, it sometimes made itself evident even in the midst of devotional exercises.

One New Hampshire parish was guarded and guided by a quaint speaking elderly man, who had a slight lisp. He was fond of outdoor work of almost every sort and was an able farmer as well as preacher, but all domestic matters he relegated to his wife.

One day the old traveling baker seeing the minister at work in the field, drew rein, and when the jingling of his horse's bells had subsided he called out, "Any crackers wanted today, parson?"

The minister raised his head and surveyed the baker from under his shaggy eyebrows. No smile of greeting crossed his solemn face.

"Abraham in the field," he responded gravely. "Tharah (Sarah) in the tent," and without another word he resumed his hoeing and left the baker to digest his Biblical reproof and drive on to the house to find out if "Sarah" would buy any of his wares.—Youth's Companion.

When Longfellow Came to Cambridge.

In 1836, when Lowell was a sophomore, Mr. Longfellow came to Cambridge, a young man, to begin his long and valuable life in the college. His presence there proved a benediction and, I might say, marks an epoch in the history of Harvard. In the first place, he was fresh from Europe, and he gave the best possible stimulus to the budding interest in German literature. In the second place, he came from Bowdoin college, and in those days it was a very good thing for a Harvard undergraduate to know that there were people not bred in Cambridge quite as well read, as intelligent, as elegant and accomplished as any Harvard graduate. In the third place, Longfellow, though he was so young, ranked already distinctly as a man of letters.

This was no broken winded minister who had been made professor. He was not a lawyer without clients or a doctor without patients, for whom "a place" had to be found. He was already known as a poet by all educated people. —Edward Everett Hale in Outlook.

It isn't much trouble for a really healthy man to be good humored. Jollity and exhuberant health are a proverbial combination. The hearty man who is always laughing doesn't have any trouble with his digestion. It has been said that laughing makes people healthy. The truth is that health makes people laugh.

It is impossible to estimate the tremendous influence of health upon human character. A man with a headache will not be in a happy, contented frame of mind. A man who suffers from a weak stomach and an impaired digestion will sit and grumble through the best meal ever prepared. A bilious man who is not a bore, is deserving of a place in a museum. A nervous man who is not petulent and fault-finding is a curiosity. All these conditions lead to grave diseases, when the victim becomes not only disagreeable, but dependent as well. A wise wife will realize that while the old saying that a "man's heart is in his stomach," is not literally true, it is a fact that his stomach sweetens or sours his character according as it is healthy or unhealthy. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best of medicines for the conditions described. It makes the weak stomach strong, the impaired digestion perfect, invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood and tones the nerves. It tears down half-dead, inert tissues and replaces them with the firm muscular tissues of health. It builds new and healthy nerve fibres and brain cells. It dissipates nervousness and melancholy and imparts mental elasticity and courage. It is the best of all known medicines for nervous disorders.

"Through your skillful treatment I am once more a well man," writes J. N. Arnold, Esq., of Gandy, Logan Co. Nebr. "I suffered for years and could not find relief until I commenced taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I suffered with constipation and torpidity of liver which resulted in irritation of the prostate and inflammation of the bladder. I had only taken one bottle when I found great relief. The medicine has effected a permanent cure."

THE WATER QUESTION.

The Special Water Committee in Conference With Engineer Von Geldern.

The Special Water Committee of the Board of City Trustees, composed of Trustees Hartin, Seipp and Harris, are still hard at work endeavoring to secure to the city a water proposition which will meet with the approval of voters when the question of a municipal ownership of water works will again have been submitted to the people. This will probably be some time in August. Civil engineer Otto Von Geldern, who has offered his services to the city gratis for the purpose of again testing the artesian wells of Sonoma, was in town last Sunday in consultation with the Trustees. After examining and testing a number of wells he returned to San Francisco. He will be in town again this morning and will make a thorough test of the different systems.

There is a diversity of opinion among our people as to which one of several propositions is the best to be adopted, cost and service to be considered. Some favor the Lawrence well, cost $3,500; others the wells of the Sonoma Water Company, cost $6000; while many favor buying the Toroni lot, cost $1000, or the Gilbert lot, cost $600, the city to sink its own artesian wells on the lots. The Vallejo Water Works system, which the owners so far have failed to place a valuation upon, also has its advocates. The visit of Engineer Von Geldern to-day is for the purpose of making a report on these various propositions and assist the Board in its efforts to give this town a first-class water system at the least possible cost.

New Freight Line.

A new freight line has been established between this place and San Francisco, via Embarcadero. The schooner "Four Sisters," J. P. Hauto, master, will haul freight to and from the metropolis to the Lower Landing at Embarcadero, where it will be freighted to Sonoma and other parts of the valley under the supervision of Frank Weems, the Sonoma agent, whose office is in the Odd Fellow's building. See adv on second page.

COUNTY GLEANINGS.

The preliminary examination of Peter Bill and Marion Miranda, the two Indians arrested for the murder of another Indian named Ben. Bernardo near Santa Rosa, was held in Justice Baldwin's court Tuesday. His honor held both men to answer in the Superior Court on the charge of murder.

E. Morris Cox, principal of the schools of Santa Rosa, and F. H. Cromwell, principal of the Petaluma grammar school, have been elected by the Supervisors members of the Board of Education of Sonoma county for the ensuing term of two years, vice A. B. Ware and W. O. Hocker, whose terms will expire July 1st.

Justice Brown of Santa Rosa on Tuesday last tried the suit of A. Bonaiti vs. the S. F. & N. P. R'y Company. This was a claim of $100, the alleged value of two cows run over and killed by one of the company's trains. Justice Brown gave judgment of $50 for one of the cows, and allowed a ten day's stay of execution. J. C. Sims was attorney for plaintiff.

Printed Envelopes.

The First Assistant Postmaster General has mailed to Postmistress Bates the following notice: "Don't mail your letters or valuable packages without your name and full address either written or printed upon the upper left hand corner of the envelope or wrapper. This will insure its return direct to you from the postoffice addressed if not delivered, thus preventing its being sent to the dead letter office at Washington." Parties wishing to carry out these recommendations of the Postmaster General can be accommodated with printed envelopes at the INDEX-TRIBUNE office at a slight advance in cost over unprinted envelopes.

Ex-Senator John J. Ingalls of Kansas, whose fame as a brilliant writer, a man of remarkable scholarship and literary attainments is even greater than that of the distinguished Senator, announces a new book on the subject of the American-Spanish-Cuban War. It is entitled "America's War for Humanity in Picture and Story." It is published by the D. N. Thompson Publishing Co., of St. Louis, Mo., and is an exhaustive discussion of the causes of the war, and an equally exhaustive history of its incidents, and a brilliant analysis of the famous characters conducting it. It promises to be one of the great popular works called forth by this wonderfully interesting national episode. Whatever Senator Ingalls touches he adorns; and this book shines and sparkles in the light of his genius. The present work is worthy of his genius, and will be a monument to his fame. The subject now so engrosses the popular mind as to forecast for this book a sale that will be universal. It will be sold by subscription only, and the canvassing samples are now ready for agents. We advertise it in another column.

WAR NEWS

Advices from Hongkong state that the insurgents have taken Manila and killed during the past month 2,000 of the 7,000 Spanish soldiers stationed there.

It is reported that four Spanish warships are cruising off Cuba in anticipation of intercepting the 29 transports with over 25,000 American soldiers bound for the invasion of Cuba.

Admiral Sampson has laid siege to Santiago, which is being attacked by land forces under Gen. Miles and the insurgents on the one side and the Admiral's fleet of warships on the other.

The Charleston and the three transports with 2,500 California Volunteers on board bound for Manila have arrived safely at Honolulu, where they were accorded a grand reception by President Dole and the patriotic citizens of the Hawaiian Republic.

Latest advices from Manila report that Admiral Dewey's victory over the Spaniards is even greater than at first reported. He is awaiting the arrival of reinforcements from San Francisco before attempting to take possession of the city, which is completely at the mercy of his fleet of warships.

Highwaymen on Wheels.

A wheelman of West 46th street, New York, was attacked, robbed and left senseless by two highwaymen mounted on bicycles in Central Park. Repeated accounts of robberies by men mounted upon wheels have appeared in the papers in various parts of the country. Those depredators of the health, diseases of the kidneys and bladder, will likewise escape arrest, and pursue their atrocious career unchecked, unless they are arrested by the potent intervention of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest diuretic, as well as tonic, known to modern times. It is at the start that disease is the more easily overcome. The use of the Bitters is followed by the happiest results in dyspepsia, liver complaint and nervousness.

Miracles and Phlebotomism.

"He (Pugin) visited Sant' Andrea della Fratte, the scene of the miraculous conversion of Abbe Ratisbonne, the Jew. Abbe Ratisbonne entered the church a Jew and came out a Christian, having seen there, he stated, a vision of our Lady. 'The story,' Pugin said after seeing the church, 'is demonstrably false. The man could not have said a prayer in such a hideous church. Our Lady could not have chosen such a church for a vision. The man could have had no piety in him to have staid in such a church at all.'

"The friend to whom his remarks were addressed replied, 'As I heard the story, Ratisbonne was not at the moment praying, but thinking of the uncouthness of the architecture of the place.' Pugin's whole face changed. 'Is that so? Then he was a man of God. He knew what true Christianity was, though he was a Jew. I honor him. Our Lady would have come to him anywhere. The story is demonstrably true.'"—"Life of Cardinal Wiseman," by Wilfrid Ward.

Duck Eggs In an Albumen Factory.

Near Chingkiang, China, is a great albumen factory for the utilization of the duck eggs which are produced in that region in enormous quantities, flocks of 4,000 and 5,000 ducks being by no means uncommon. The eggs are broken at the rate of from 40,000 to 60,000 per day by women, who separate the white from the yolk, the former being carefully cleaned and dried until they resemble fish glue, when they are packed in 400 pound cases lined with zinc. The yolks are passed through sieves into 25 gallon receptacles, mixed with a salt and borax solution, packed in 500 pound barrels and used in Europe for preparing and dressing articles of superior quality. The albumen finds a ready market in England, France and Germany for dyes for the best cotton goods.—Philadelphia Press.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

FOURTH OF JULY.

The Committee Decide to Celebrate in Sonoma.

A majority of the committee of twenty-four, appointed by Mayor Duhring to make arrangements for celebrating the Fourth of July in this place, as per call met at the City Pavilion on Thursday. There were about twelve or fifteen members present.

It was the sentiment of the committee that the celebration be held in Sonoma, to conclude with a grand ball in the evening at Union Hall.

The Finance Committee was requested to get down to work and raise the wherewithal to make the celebration as attractive and patriotic as possible.

Owing to the absence of Mayor Duhring the meeting adjourned to meet at the City Pavilion on next Monday evening at 8 o'clock to arrange a programme of exercises and complete other necessary arrangements for making the celebration a grand success. Among the committeemen present were Henry Weyl, S. Schocken, Henry Bates, H. Appleton, C. J. Schuster, C. H. Ohm, L. Modini, J. H. Seipp, Jas. H. Albertson, S. Ciucci and H. H. Granice.

Races Proposed.

There is some talk of arranging a race horse meeting to be held in Sonoma some time during July, probably on the Fourth. The project has not yet assumed shape, but if races are decided upon they will be fully up to the standard as far as good horses and speed are concerned. The half-mile track on the old Graves place will be put in shape and the purses will be of sufficient magnetism to draw some of the finest racers in the county.

Brevities.

Hay balers are now running at full blast throughout the valley.

PRIVATE SALE—On account of removal, furniture, rugs and household effects, at the residence of Dr. D. G. Atwood, must be sold immediately. *

Conrad Futterer, the tailor, advertises that he is now making suits to order from $12 up. He guarantees a perfect fit and good material.

The property-owners of Sonoma Road District are making a poor showing this year at paying their taxes. There are 120 names published in the delinquent list.

Andrew Anderson, well-known to many old residents in this valley, is now the proprietor of the National Saloon, 773 Main street, Petaluma, where he will be pleased to meet his old Sonoma friends. See adv.

The construction train of the S. F. & N. P. Railway has been engaged the past week in repairing the Sonoma Valley branch. During their stay the men connected with the train have been stopping at the Union Hotel.

The hay crop this season is the heaviest yield known to Sonoma Valley for many years, and no better evidence is needed to demonstrate this than the fact that some of our farmers have been unable to secure machines to cut their hay at the proper time.

Dr. D. G. Atwood, who recently sold his practice here to Dr. H. Gottenburg, will leave the fore part of next week for San Francisco, where he will remain for some time. He expects to make a tour of California, Oregon and Washington and will probably then go East. He has not yet decided on a permanent location. The many Sonoma friends of Dr. Atwood and his mother will greatly regret their departure from our midst.

SHUBRICK NORRIS DEAD.

Entered into Eternal Rest at His Los Angeles Residence.

Shubrick Norris, for a number of years a resident of this valley, is dead. He passed away on Sunday of last week at his residence in Los Angeles.

Shubrick Norris was a pioneer of the Pacific Coast. Previous to locating in this valley in 1887 he resided in Oregon, where he was widely known. During a residence of six or eight years in this valley he made many staunch friends by his sterling qualities and generous disposition. Several years ago he sold his fine farm on Sonoma Creek to Wm. McElroy, since which time he has resided with his wife in Los Angeles.

The deceased leaves a wife Mrs. Isabelle J. Norris in affluent circumstances. Mr. Norris was a native of Maryland and aged sixty-nine years.

A GRAND AFFAIR.

Reception by the Alumni Club to the High School Graduates.

The ultra swell function in Sonoma's social circle was the reception tendered the graduating class of the Sonoma Valley Union High School by the Alumni Club at Temelac Hall, the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wickersham, last evening (Friday.) The Alumni Club, as the name suggests, is composed of the graduates of the High School. Wm. Clewe is President and Miss Elsie Appleton Secretary. Last night's reception was the initial effort of the Club in the line of entertainment and each member worked diligently to make the affair a signal success, and to say that their desires were realized is speaking very mildly indeed.

Temelac Hall is one of the finest and most costly mansions in the valley, its location being in the midst of a beautiful orange grove in the western foothills. Here the unequaled youth and beauty of old Sonoma assembled and held high carnival until the gray dawn of the on-coming morn ushered the merry-makers from their seat of pleasure. The High School colors, orange and white, predominated and made unique and exquisite decorations. Dancing was the prime feature of amusement and Girardi of San Francisco furnished excellent music for the tripping of the light fantastic. Palatable refreshments were served at the proper time, and before saying adieu the many guests who responded to the generous invitations of the Alumni Club voted the reception one of the most enjoyable social affairs ever held in Sonoma Valley. Many were present from San Francisco, Santa Rosa and other places.

The graduating exercises of the High School will be held in Union Hall this evening and a crowded house is expected. Music by Newburg & Smith of Petaluma will be a feature of the programme.

Arrest of a Section Foreman.

Section Foreman Bowman, stationed at Black Point on the line of the S. F. & N. P. Railway, was arrested Tuesday morning by Sheriff Harrison of Marin county and taken to San Rafael.

The arrest was made on a charge of perjury, preferred by a candidate for the office of School Trustee, whose name was not given out. Mr. Bowman voted at the recent school election and swore his vote in. It was found that he was not on the great register. It is claimed that he registered with Constable Devoto at Novato some time ago, but that official neglected to turn the registration blank over to the County Clerk, hence the discrepancy.

Drunk and Disorderly.

Marshal Robin on Tuesday evening last arrested a tramp named Jack Donnelly on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, and locked him up in the Sonoma bastile over night to cool off and sober up. The next morning the offender was taken before Judge Cheney and upon his promise to leave town was released from custody, with the admonition if he again appeared before his Honor he would surely be sent to the County Jail. Donnelly was the first intoxicated man seen on our streets in several months.

A Valuable Horse.

John Ford, manager of the Senator Fair race track, near this place, was in town Wednesday. He was out exercising Gossiper, one of the most valuable stallions in the world. The late Senator Fair refused an offer of $25,000 for the animal, which is valued at $50,000. Gossiper is the sire of Gossimer and a half dozen other trotters that are world-famous. He is a beautiful bay and is now thirteen years old and can trot inside of 2:10 easily.

A Charming Wedding.

Amid a bower of June blossoms and trailing vines the nuptials of Miss Clara Cheney and Claude E. Johnson were solemnized last Sunday at high noon. The decoration of the Cheney residence was a special feature of this charming wedding and Queen Flora held full sway. The deutzia and white roses were the principal flowers used in the designs. These exquisite blossoms were combined with bamboo, potted plants and ferns in a most exquisite manner. In the center of a canopy of evergreens and flowers, the top of which was festooned with smilax, hung the wedding bell and under this the happy young couple stood as they took the vow. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Chase of the Congregational Church. The bride was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Stella Johnson, gowned in white organdy and blue ribbons, and Miss Maud Green who wore lavender organdy and lavender ribbons. The bride, a petite blonde, wore a simple gown of white organdy combined with rare lace. The groom was attended by Dr. D. G. Atwood and C. M. Cheney. After the ceremony, when congratulations had been received, the relatives and invited guests sat down to an elaborate wedding feast. At four o'clock the happy couple left for San Francisco, on the Southern Pacific train, amid a shower of the inevitable rice and old shoes. Hymen did himself proud on this happy occasion and all wish him well for it. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson received many handsome wedding gifts, among them being elegant blankets, silk quilt, two silver berry spoons, oil paintings, hand painted china, napkins, table cloth, several sets silver spoons, flower vase, China tea sets, sapphire pin, Battenburg center piece, China cake set, glass set, handsome pillows, silk shawl, ink stand, set of carvers, silver pickle fork, silver sugar bowl and cream pitcher, silver napkin rings, silver sugar spoon, silver spoon and sugar shell, gold pin, silver butter knife, silver bon-bon dish, silver salad set, silver bread tray and other rare and handsome articles. The following were present Rev. C. E. Chase, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cheney, Mrs. M. A. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Cheney and son, Miss Stella Johnson, Miss Zelma Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Revie and children, C. M. Cheney, Mrs. A. McHarvey, Mrs. M. F. Lee, Miss Sadie McHarvey, Dr. D. G. Atwood, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Durant, Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Hotz, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bates and daughter, Mrs. S. T. Craig, Mrs. I. B. Atwood, Miss Katie McDonell, Clark H. Gaines, Mrs. A. J. Van Every, Sonoma; Miss Eleanor Green, Miss Lena Johnson, Mrs. Orrick Johnson and son, San Francisco; Miss Maud Green, Cloverdale; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. S. Zane and children, San Quentin; Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Harvey, Fulton; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. D. Green and daughter, Petaluma; Mrs. J. Smith, F. B. Smith, Napa.

Their Remains May yet be Recovered.

W. P. Taylor of San Francisco was in Santa Rosa Wednesday. He is a brother of Fred. S. and Ed. Taylor, who, with Beaurie Spencer, were passengers on the ill-fated schooner Lady Jane Gray. The family has given up all hopes for the boys and all its members are endeavoring to reconcile themselves to their double loss. Mr. Taylor thinks that the bodies of his brothers and Mr. Spencer may have been among the seven which were washed ashore a few days ago; but it will be some days before they can learn, owing to the extreme distance from telegraphic communication. They are sparing no expense to find the bodies and they will be brought home if recovered. All the young men were expert athletes and swimmers, and Mr. Taylor cannot understand why they should have been lost when several men who could not swim were saved.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

OLD LOVERS.

Heart of my heart, when the day was young
Hope sang to life with a silver tongue,
Hope beckoned love down a flowery way,
Where 'twas always morning and always May,
And two true lovers need never part—
Do you remember, heart of my heart?

Heart of my heart, when the noon was high
Work showed the way we must travel by,
Duty spoke cold and stern in our ears,
Bidding us bear all the toil and tears,
Partings and losses, sorrow and smart—
Have you forgotten, heart of my heart?

Heart of my heart, in the setting sun
We sit at peace, with our day's work done.
In the cool of the evening we two look back
On the winding pathway, the noon's rough track,
And the morn's green pleasance, where roses twine,
Heart of my heart, with your hand in mine.

Heart of my heart, when the night is here
Love will sing songs of life in our ear.
We shall sleep awhile 'neath the daisied grass,
Till we put on the glory and rise and pass
To walk where eternal splendors shine,
Heart of my heart, with your hand in mine.
—E. Nesbit in Argosy.

A BIT OF SILVER.

"I want to ask you a question, Gomez."

"Well, my dear boy, what is it?"

"Where did you get your money?"

The question was an abrupt one—it was almost impertinent. But Gomez de Bonilla was an intimate friend of mine, a good fellow, and—we had dined. To say truth, we had not only dined, but wined, and it was over some excellent postprandials in the shape of further wine and fragrant cigars that I had asked the question. But I had long wished to do so, and I will tell you why.

Some two years before Gomez was poor as a church mouse. He was always a good fellow, but then, you know, there is a difference between good fellows rich and good fellows poor. And, to my shame be it spoken, I think I liked him better rich than poor. Well, as I said, he was almost destitute. He had a profession, it is true—he was a journalist, but in Spain the gains of the fraternity of the pen are not large. What little he did earn went to the bad, for he was an inveterate gambler.

But from a poverty stricken journalist he suddenly blossomed out into a man of wealth. He had the finest horses, he belonged to the most fashionable club, he had the most luxuriously fitted town house, he had purchased the country seat of a decayed grandee, he had the best cook in Madrid, and he moved in the best society, for, alas, even in Spain the golden key is beginning to open all portals. But do not think from what I say that Gomez was not a gentleman, for he came of an excellent family.

Well, as I said, we had just finished an excellent dinner and over the walnuts and the wine I put my question:

"Gomez, where did you get your money?"

He looked at me thoughtfully, and knocked the ash from his cigar. "Where did I get my money?" he repeated slowly. "And what says Dame Rumor concerning it, Pedro?"

"There are all sorts of stories," I replied; "some probable, some wildly impossible, some good humored, more ill natured. You will pardon my frankness if I tell you that I have heard some people call your wealth 'ill gotten gains,' whisper of retired highwayman, and the like. There are others who hint darkly at counterfeiting. Among the lower classes there is a widespread belief that you have sold yourself to the devil. And I have even met intelligent people who hinted at supernatural means."

"Perhaps they were right," was his laconic reply.

I stared at him.

"Listen, and you may perhaps tell me whether the means were supernatural or no. I have never been able to decide. The reason that the source of my fortune has never been discovered was because the only man who knew of it left the city the day after"—

He paused.

"The day after what?" I queried.

"Well, I will begin at the beginning. The story is a curious one and should be told in sequence."

He lit a fresh cigar and then began:

"You knew me two years ago when I was poor. You also knew, as did all my friends, that I had a passion for gaming. You would all of you chorus, when speaking of me: 'Poor Bouilla! He has the worst of vices—he is a desperate gambler.' You were all wrong. I did not play simply for love of it. I played because I was poor. I was not a gambler. I was a speculator. I had fixed upon a certain sum which I considered a competence. I saw no way of acquiring it by my profession, so I devoted myself to the green cloth—how assiduously you know."

He smiled at the expression of assent which involuntarily flitted over my countenance, watched the smoke wreaths curling over his head for a moment and continued:

"One evening I was feeling unusually blue. I never drank, as you know—that is, never to excess—and certainly never to do what is called 'drowning sorrow.' My resource was the gaming table. Unfortunately I had in my possession a considerable sum of money, which had been intrusted to me by a friend for the purpose of paying some debts. He had been suddenly called away from the city. I entered the gambling hell and seated myself at the roulette table. Fortune was against me. The few duros that belonged to me were soon gone. Something seemed to possess me that night. I was not myself. I did what I never should have dreamed myself capable of doing—I staked my friend's money. I staked it, and I lost it all."

I was about to speak.

"Do not condemn me," he interrupted. "You could say nothing severer than were my self reproaches. Long I sat there, glaring at the other players. As I watched the ivory ball spin round my brain seemed to spin round too. My senses seemed to be leaving me. I felt as if life were no longer dear to me. Penniless and dishonored, what was there left to live for?

"As these thoughts passed through my working brain the night wore on. The players dropped off one by one. The tables were gradually deserted. Soon there was but one left lighted—the roulette table before which I sat, and at which one persevering gamester was trying his luck. Finally he, too, wearied, and I was left alone with the banker, who was the proprietor of the gambling hell."

"Oh, I remember," I interrupted; "Jose Herrara, who disappeared so suddenly a couple of years ago!"

"The same," replied Bonilla, fixing his eyes keenly upon me.

I do not know why, but I began to feel uncomfortable. However, he continued:

"The banker looked at me inquiringly. I half rose to retire. I had fully determined to blow out my brains in the street, and that I did not do so is owing to one of the strangest of circumstances—so strange that you will not blame me for wondering whether it was supernatural. I half rose, I say, and as I did so I saw upon the floor a round, bright object which had a silver shimmer as the gaslight fell upon it. It was a coin, a'"—

"A peseta," I interrupted breathlessly.

"Yes," he went on, "a little bit of silver coin—only a peseta. But it saved my life. I placed my foot upon it, and, motioning to the banker, said:

"'A peseta on the 17!'

"The banker knew me well—he had cause to—and without making any inquiries he repeated my wager after me and set the ball a-whirling. It stopped in the 17.

"'Seventeen wins,' said he, and on the 17 clanged seven silver duros.

"'Do you leave it there?' said he.

"I nodded.

"Again the ivory ball spun round and again it stopped at 17.

"'Seventeen wins,' said the banker.

"Again I left the glittering pile upon the 17 and again it won. Seven several times did the goddess Fortune smile upon me. And when I stopped it was not because I feared to venture further, but because I had broken the bank. The poverty stricken wretch who a few moments before had contemplated suicide was now wealthy."

"And the peseta," said I. "You have that still, of course?"

"No," he replied, with a strange smile.

"Why," exclaimed I, with surprise, "had I been you I would have kept it all my life."

"No," he replied, with the same peculiar smile, "you would not have kept it."

"And why not?"

"When I stooped to pick up the coin, I found—nothing."

"Nothing!" I echoed. "Why—what—where"—

"That which I had taken for a peseta was not a coin. The round, silvery object on which the light had fallen and deceived me was"—

"What?"

"A drop of water."—Adapted For Argonaut From the Spanish.

Lincoln, Grant and Stephens.

General Horace Porter, in his "Campaigning With Grant," tells a story of the meeting at City Point between Alexander H. Stephens, vice president of the Confederate states, and other southern commissioners and President Lincoln and Secretary Seward to discuss preliminaries of peace. Many officers, including General Grant and General Porter, were in attendance on this meeting.

Vice President Stephens was a sallow, undersized man, whose skin seemed shriveled on his bones. One of the officers said of him, at the end of an interview, "The Lord seems to have robbed that man's body of all its flesh and blood to make brains of them."

On his arrival, Mr. Stephens, says General Porter, was wrapped from his eyes to his heels in a coarse gray overcoat about three sizes too large for him, with a collar so high that it threatened to lift his hat off every time he leaned his head back.

The coat, together with his complexion, which was as yellow as a ripe ear of corn, gave rise to a characterization by Mr. Lincoln which was very amusing. The next time Mr. Lincoln saw General Grant at City Point, after the conference, he said to him:

"Grant, did you notice Stephen's coat?"

"Oh, yes," answered the general.

"Well," continued Mr. Lincoln, "soon after we assembled on the steamer at Hampton Roads the cabin began to get pretty warm, and Stephens stood up and pulled off his big coat. He pulled it off just about as you would husk an ear of corn. I couldn't help thinking, as I looked first at the coat and then at the man:

"'Well, if that isn't the biggest shuck and the littlest nubbin I ever did see!'"

The Bomb in Jeff Davis' Desk.

When the United States troops occupied Richmond, April 3, 1865, General Edward H. Ripley of Vermont, who was appointed military governor of the city, found in the desk of Jefferson Davis, in the house occupied by the Confederate president, a cast iron bomb in the shape of a lump of coal. It was evidently cast from a good sized piece of coal, was coated with coal tar and coal dust and could hardly be distinguished, when handled, from a lump of coal. It was hollow and would hold powder enough to make a heavy explosion. Army authorities have never doubted that the otherwise unexplained blowing up of a steam vessel loaded with ammunition at City Point was the work of a bomb of this kind, which had been dropped into a pile of coal and shoveled into the furnace of the steamer, and similar bombs probably occasioned similar catastrophes during the war.—Burlington Free Press.

ONE OF TWO WAYS.

The bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine, and as such is not liable to any form of disease except by by one of two ways. The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatment of other diseases.

Chief Cause.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. So the womb, like the bladder, was created for one purpose, and if not doctored too much is not liable to weakness or disease, except in rare cases. It is situated back of and very close to the bladder, therefore any pain, disease or inconvenience manifested in the kidneys, back, bladder or urinary passages is often, by mistake, attributed to female weakness or womb trouble of some sort. The error is easily made and may be as easily avoided. To find out correctly, set your urine aside for twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates kidnes or bladder trouble. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At druggists fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail. Mention the Index-Tribune and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.
